THE NURSES' HOME

Of the Groves Latter-day Saints' Hospital.

ON the same block and some little distance removed from the Groves Latter-day Saints' hospital, stands the home which has been erected for the accommodation of its nurses.

It is a splendid structure of a modified colonial style, consisting of a basement, two full stories, and a commodious attic, making it in reality a four-story building, and is constructed of red sandstone and highest grade buff brick. It was designed by Mr. Don Carlos Young; it contains over 30 rooms and is intended to accommodate from 40 to 50 nurses. It is finished inside in natural pine and all the floors are covered with the blaid linoleum.

It is heated from the boiler room of the hospital by the Warren-Webster system, while the Johnson system of heat regulation automatically maintains an even temperature of 70 degrees Fahrenheit. It was erected at a cost of $20,000, while the furnishings, which are first class in every particular, cost several thousand dollars additional. It was built by Ashton Bros. The plumbing was done by J. C. & R. C. As its name implies, this building is, in every sense of the word, a home for the nurses, and a very comfortable one might almost say luxurious home it is. In the basement a large room is provided for the nurses' trunks. By keeping the trunks out of the sleeping apartments the suggestion of the hotel is avoided and the home effect preserved. In the basement also are the store rooms where are kept extra beds, mattresses, and other supplies. The florist has a room here too, where potted plants are kept over winter, and the engineer's supplies are kept in still another room.

The principal room in the basement, however, is the lecture room. Here the nurses assemble three, four and sometimes five evenings every week to listen to lectures either from some doctor on the medical staff or from the head nurse or one of the other of the trained nurses. The room is well lighted and fitted up with blackboards and student chairs.

A broad stairway of brown stone leads you to the main entrance on the second floor. You enter at once into a wide reception hall, immediately to the left is a very large parlour, where the nurses may sit and read or receive company. It is elegantly furnished in leather, the donation of Mr.

THE NURSES' HOME

T. R. Cutler. From the windows a beautiful view of Salt Lake valley is obtained. From the reception hall you enter a wide transverse hall, on either side of which are sleeping apartments. The cedar room is on this floor and here are placed the ward bedding and clothing, which are kept free from the destructive moth. A stairway leads you to the upper story, where the general floor plan is about the same. Directly above the parlor is the chief nurse's room. This and the parlor are perhaps the most pleasant rooms in the building. As with all the other rooms the floor is covered with linoleum, but in the center of this one a large rug of elegant pattern is spread, which imparts a decided warmth to it. Sleeping apartments for the nurses, bath rooms and toilet rooms occupy the remaining space, as they do also of the attic above.

Whenever a nurse crosses the threshold of this building she is home, and as much so as if she were in a private dwelling. While off duty no call from the hospital is allowed to reach her. Her time is her own. She can receive her friends in the parlor or particular lady friend in her private apartment. Her gentleman friends are restricted to the parlor. This arrangement evidently was not designed specially for the accommodation of lovers.

The home is regulated in a most systematic manner. At 10 p. m. each nurse, not on duty, is to be in her room and all lights turned off in both rooms and corridors. Nurses are to be in bed and lights out in sleeping rooms at 10:30 p. m.

Night nurses, who are on duty from 6 p. m. to 6 a. m., have their rooms at 7:19 a. m. and are to be in their rooms from 8:30 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Day nurses are called at 6 a. m., attend prayers at 6:30 a. m., have breakfast at same hour and go on duty at 7 a. m. and are to be in their rooms from 8:30 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Special passes for late hours are granted once every two weeks. All disputes are referred to the superintendent of nurses for settlement. Nurses are required to attend church at least once every Sunday. They must attend all lectures in the lecture room. No lectures are given Tuesday evenings, in order to afford an opportunity to those who desire to do so, to attend the Mutual Improvement meetings.

At present there are 25 nurses on the staff and nine on the night staff. Of these no less than seven are graduate nurses, which is regarded as an unusually large percentage of an entire staff.

The home affords every comfort to the nurses; it is a model in its appointments and a positive credit to those who designed and built it as well as to the management which controls it.
